About Asian Cultural Symphony Orchestra

The Asian Cultural Symphony Orchestra (ACSO) was founded in 2016 with the aim of championing Asian cultural symphonic music and celebrating it with equal regard as its Western counterpart. Based in Singapore as the premier ensemble of Geylang Serai Community Club, the ACSO also seeks to serve as a platform to showcase Asian artists through their performances and compositions.

The Evergreen Symphonic Jukebox returns for a live performance this year! Let veteran singer Rahimah Rahim, beatboxer Charles Stitch Wong, and the Asian Cultural Symphony Orchestra, led by conductors Adrian Chiang and Detric Wong surprise you in this unique concert. Highlights include familiar tunes with Samuel Phua on the saxophone, and the exclusive screening of Longevity Peach, directed by Ng Xinmin with a brand new soundtrack performed live.

Performed in English, Mandarin & Malay.
